Accreditation of Coaches and Officials

It is highly advisable for your coaches and officials to be accredited or to undertake accreditation processes.

Accreditation does not guarantee quality coaching or umpiring; however it does indicate;

- A positive attempt by the individual to upskill themselves.
- A commitment to your club and its members.
- That they have undertaken some form of training and assessment.

By your club utilizing accredited coaches and officials you are protecting your club in a legal sense.

Handy Hints

- It is goodwill and an acknowledgement of a volunteers' time and commitment for your club to pay for (within reason) accreditation course registration and training.
- The more people that you can have in your club with basic accreditation credentials, the better your succession planning.
